Introduction

"Education for common people" drives Indore Institute of Science and Technology's dedication to student empowerment. This echoes in their robust student government and engagement in academic, administrative, and social spheres.

Student Activity Committee:

This dynamic committee features representatives from the class, NSS, cultural, and sports sectors, along with student leaders.

Leadership development: The committee nurtures leadership skills through event planning, fostering a positive campus environment.

College events: They spearhead a variety of activities—sports competitions, seminars, cultural festivals, and national leader commemorations.

Social responsibility: active participation in NSS initiatives like awareness rallies, environment drives, and maintaining campus discipline.

Departmental involvement: They contribute to departmental activities and annual festivals.

Beyond the Committee:

Administrative engagement: Students nominated to academic and administrative committees (IQAC, Library, etc.) gain valuable experience and hone their skills.

Co-curricular and extracurricular pursuits: NSS, cultural activities, sports, and excursions see student representation and organization of events, competitions, and initiatives like tree planting.

Collaboration: Partnering with local NGOs on projects like blood donation camps demonstrates the college's commitment to social impact.

IIST ensures meaningful student participation in diverse activities, shaping their education and enriching the community. This dedication to "education for common people" empowers students to lead, build, and contribute, becoming well-rounded individuals dedicated to positive change.
